To whom it may concern,

This letter of impression is for the students of Tokyo University of Technology. They were my students in Lasallian English program. As one of their teachers, I have had an opportunity to observe their participation and interaction in class. My impressions with these students throughout the program have always been positive.

The students demonstrate intelligence and capability to be great in English language. They always seemed to be attentive in class. They can accomplish tasks in a courteous and timely manner. They showed great respect to their teachers that helps the class work well. The most impressive aspect of them is their willingness to learn independently to enhance and be prepared for their next class.

Due their great aptitude for learning, their abilities and determination will continue to grow. I am convinced that these students will thrive in their academic programs and in improving their English skills.
