To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter to provide an impression about the Japanese students we had from Tokyo University of Technology for the month of February 2021.

I only taught them for two weeks, but they left a positive impression on me. First, I commend them for being punctual. All of the students I handled were never late nor absent in my classes. Second, they showed diligence. They came to class prepared and passed their outputs on the given deadline. Lastly, they showed enthusiasm in learning the language. Some of them did not have high level English skills, so they had difficulty understanding the lessons well. However, they did not give up and tried their best to grasp and comprehend the lessons. The best thing about them is they accepted corrections and feedback positively. This made me more motivated to teach them harder.

I really appreciate all their hard work and I have great deal of respect for them. I am convinced that they will be successful in improving their English skills and be better speakers of the language in the future.
